Winkler Community Fdn. launches Vital Signs 2024

By Ashleigh Viveiros

Winkler Community Foundation (WCF) invited community leaders to the launch of its 2024 Vital Signs initiative last week.

The Vital Signs project is a kind of community check-up that measures quality of life in a variety of areas and allows residents to weigh-in on local priorities, challenges, and needs. WCF first gathered data for Vital Signs reports in 2012 and again in 2018.

"Our community has undergone some significant shifts and changes in the last number of years, and if we don't continue to measure all those areas, those domains of wellbeing, then we're not going to have an accurate measurement for how to move forward," said WCF board chair Corey Hildebrand. "The way that we measure the standard of living and of wellness in our community is by taking this snapshot, and then we can measure it back compared to the last two reports and see where we celebrate, where we've met the mark, and where the challenges are."

Vital Signs breaks community wellbeing into several areas: culture and belonging, community resilience, standard of living, health and wellness, environment, education and learning, civic and democratic engagement, and arts and recreation.

"It's a framework so that you make sure that you look at factors in different areas of the community so there's no real blind spots," explained project lead Kara Gray from Great Matter Insights, the firm tasked with heading up the research for Vital Signs 2024.

Feedback on all these areas will be gleaned in a number of ways, starting with last week's session that invited participants to share their thoughts.

"We wanted to get community leaders engaged and talking about [wellbeing]," Gray said. "And also hearing from them which areas they'd prefer to focus on."

A series of roundtable discussions will be held in the weeks ahead designed to engage multiple segments of the community.

"We want the whole community to be able to talk about it," Gray said. "This spring there's going to be a community-wide survey."

Hildebrand noted the information in past Vital Signs reports has been invaluable.

"We redid our granting policies and our metrics and measurements for granting because of what we saw in Vital Signs," he said. "And it's also allowed us to be catalysts for lots of community conversations.

Backed with hard data from Vital Signs, those conversations have helped community groups and stakeholders connect with each other about needed programs and services.

Winkler a leader in Vital Signs

The Winnipeg Foundation and Endow Manitoba are hoping to share the Winkler Community Foundation's knowledge of the Vital Signs project with other foundations across the province.

"Vital Signs has always been recognized as a manner for community foundations to better understand their community, to collaborate, to partner, to develop solutions with like-minded partners," says Alan Goddard from The Winnipeg Foundation and Endow Manitoba.

"Winkler has always been a leader in this. In fact, one of the very first, if not the first, Vital Signs efforts in all of Manitoba happened in Winkler in 2012, and since that time they did one in 2018 and now again in 2024."

When they found out Winkler was tackling its third Vital Signs report this year, Goddard said they saw it as the perfect opportunity to not only support the effort but also use it to establish a pilot project they hope will get more foundations launching Vital Signs in their own communities.

"We're calling it a Manitoba Vital Signs proof of concept," he explained. "Learning from Winkler and the leadership here, how can we make the Vital Signs process accessible to all 57 Manitoba community foundations, all the way south to Altona and all the way north to Thompson?"

Goddard said they're hoping to create a scalable model so "that it can work for communities of a thousand people as well as it can work for communities of 50,000 or 100,000."

Our mistake

Our front-page cutline last week inadvertently left out the fact the Winkler personal care home the Low German plays at the concert hall were raising funds for was, of course, Salem Home.

Our apologies for the omission and any confusion it may have caused.

The two sold-out shows were hosted by Salem Foundation and the Salem Ladies Auxiliary to raise money for an electric duet bike for residents to enjoy this summer.

Organizers were still pulling the numbers together on Monday but said they expect to have raised nearly $22,000—enough to cover the cost of one bike.

dents who are part of the Rural Interest Group at the University of Manitoba, and they rotated through stations that demonstrated a variety of things such as intubation, IUD insertion, suturing, ultrasound, and more.

It is always an important opportunity, said Dr. Leanne Nause, who added that they hope the students even just have fun with the day and make some good memories.

"And hopefully we inspire some to come back or seek another rural area for their medical practice," said Nause. "More than 20 years ago, I was in a group like this, and it definitely led me to my career path," said the Morit definitely led me to my career path," said the Morden-based doctor. "It may not be for all of them, but even if they have fun and know what's out here and know what they can experience even in learning ... residents get really top-notch learning out here."

The Rural Interest Group is among a number of initiatives that can help lead more medical students to consider working in rural Manitoba. There is also the Rural Week that places students here for a week as well as the Home for the Summer program, which offers seasonal employment to post-secondary medical students providing hands-on experience.

The Rural Interest Group is led by co-president and Mordenite Vienna Peters, who is a second-year medical student.

"We host events throughout the school year for students interested in rural medicine to get a sense of what it would be like to work in rural communities," she explained.

There were just under 30 students out for the day at BTHC.

"It's good exposure ... you get a sense of what it would be like to work here one day," Peters said.

"In med one and two, we don't get tons of exposure to clinical experience," she noted. "It's a lot of lecture work, so this is a good way to get out of the classroom and learn the skills ahead of time.

"It's really nice coming to rural communities and working with the staff from the area because we learn about the needs here, what kind of patient population we would be working with, and that could help us tailor our education as we go through med school to kind of focus on something," Peters suggested. "You're getting to work with the doctors who are a big part of the community ... and students often don't really know what kind of practice they could do in areas outside Winnipeg."

Nause and other local medical practitioners were happy to be part of the day.

"We love this event. It is very exciting to have a bunch of medical students who are usually in their first or second years ... and we know they are enthusiastic about coming to get exposure out in a rural area," she said.

And there are vast options available in a regional centre like Boundary Trails Health Centre, she noted.

"It gives them an idea because maybe some don't know much about rural life," she said. "Rural medicine has so many different avenues. You can do radiology, family medicine, obstetrics, pediatrics ... there are lots of different opportunities.

"Ever since I have been here, there has always been a need for more doctors," Nause added. "We want to continue to encourage medical providers to come out to this area so we can meet the growing population needs."

"The Rural Interest Group is a really great opportunity for us to welcome students who have never seen rural medicine and to give them exposure to what our hospital has, and it is often an eye-opening experience," said Nicole Walske, executive director of the Menzies Medical Centre in Morden

She noted one current resident working here today had been part of the group as a student.

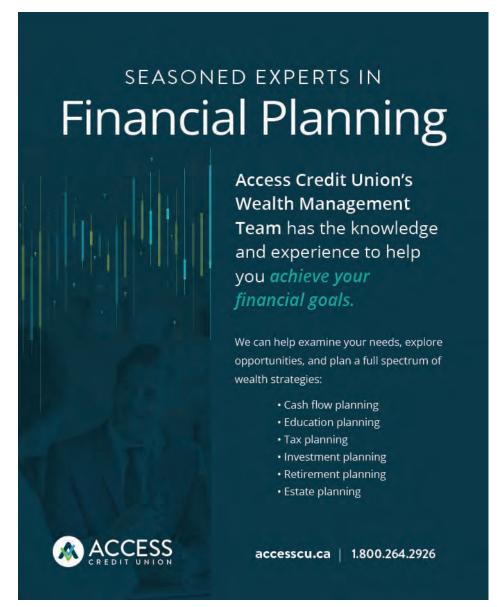

"I think it's a testament to how important it is for them to see that difference," she said. "I think our primary goal is to give them an opportunity to understand that the learning isn't just at the university level and that we as a community of physicians here want to support their learning.

"We want to give them an environment that is nurturing and safe ... the more they want to be here and like being here, the more potential we will have to keep them here as working physicians."

Local Special O athletes bring home five medals

By Ashleigh Viveiros

Pembina Valley athletes came home with the hardware from the Special Olympics Canada Winter Games in Calgary last week.

Winkler's Janell Brown and Rosengart's Trenten Heinrichs competed in snowshoeing with Team Manitoba at the event. They were joined by coaches Sabrina Klassen (Winkler) and Julia Thiessen (Altona) and mission staff member Chris Sumner (Altona).

Brown came home with three medals in tow: gold in the 100 metre race and bronze in both the 200m race and the 4x100m relay.

She says the experience was "very good" and she was pleased to have done so well after a long gap between this and the last time she competed on the national stage.

"It was very fun," Brown says, listing "meeting other people" as a highlight for her.

Heinrichs did so well in the preliminaries for his events that he got bumped up a division. He ultimately earned gold in the 4x100m relay and bronze in the 200m race.

While winning the medals was a high point, so too was the camaraderie with Special O athletes from across the country, Heinrichs says.

"I got to meet different people from different provinces," he says, sharing the Saturday night dance was a lot of fun, as was touring the sights of Cal-

Stanley council approves $7.9M financial plan

By Lorne Stelmach

The RM of Stanley has a budget in place for 2024 that manages to tackle significant projects while not calling for an overly large increase in taxes.

Council gave approval at its meeting last Thursday to a $7.9 million budget that increases spending by over $867,000 or 12.5 per cent from 2023.

It will mean a six per cent increase in property taxes for ratepayers, with the following examples of what the municipal taxes will look like for 2024:

- Residential property valued at $338,600 - an increase of $76 to $1,344.
- 40 acres of farmland valued at $465,000 - an increase of $60 to $1,066.

• Commercial property valued at $866,600 - an increase of $281 to

It is based on a municipal mill rate that increases from 8.319 to 8.818. It includes the general mill rate, which decreases from 7.430 to 7.395, as well as the special service mill rate, which increases from 0.889 to 1.423.

"It was ambitious ... it was also a challenging budget with all of the large infrastructure projects were planning on participating in," said Deputy Reeve Pete Froese. "We're also involved with the health care initiatives in the area and trying to help advance and promote them."

a blast for athletes and coaches alike.

"It was really nice to see the relationships built between athletes within our snowshoe team and then the whole Manitoba team as well."

Team Manitoba included 58 athletes competing in a wide variety of both indoor and outdoor sports. They brought home 60 medals.

It's been a few years since the nationals could be held, Thiessen notes.

"So just to see people that recognize each other from previous games that they've been to from other provinces, to be able to see each other gain, that was neat."

Competition was high, but so too was the level of support from every-

"These athletes have been training three times a week for this since July," Thiessen says. "So there's definitely that commitment from the athletes. trying to compete at the best level that they possibly can.

"But it's also a very supportive environment. People want to be supportive of each other, which really brings out a positive atmosphere."

Special Olympics Canada will now decide which athletes will represent our nation at the Special Olympics World Winter Games in Turin, Italy next March.

The next national event—the Special Olympics Canada Summer Games will be held in Medicine Hat, Alberta in 2026. The site of the 2028 Winter Games has not yet been announced.

BACKSTORY: My grandfather William Francis McCarty, son of Irish immigrants Frank and Mary McCarty who settled in Lucan, Ontario, was a poet. My mum exposed me to his work when I was young, and I will forever be grateful. This part of him holds a sacred space in my heart.

Recently I had a dream where I was telling my wife about one of his poems (which doesn't exist) called "I Know

Why the Sparrow is So Alone.

Dream Peter: "My grandfather wrote a poem called 'I Know Why the Sparrow is So Alone."

Dream Wife: "That's stupid. Sparrows aren't lonely. They hang out with all kinds of other sparrows all the time. Everyone knows that."

Dream Peter: "Well, he wasn't a freaking entomologist!" (NOTE: Dream Peter is not as smart as Real Peter and he likely meant ornithologist here.)

Dream Wife: "I mean, a five-year-old knows this."

Dream Peter: "What the heck (or some such word)! Why are you being such a jerk?!?"

Upon having uttered this I immediately wake up.

Real Wife: "Good morning!" says wife in her best Disney Princess/Nezuko voice.

Real Peter: "I dreamt my grandfather had written a poem called 'I Know Why the Sparrow is So Alone." Real Wife: "That's lovely. What a beautiful idea."

Real Peter: "You didn't think so in my dream ...'

Honestly, it took a few minutes for me to let the ghost of my dream anger fade away. How ridiculous is that?

Poor Real Wife was gracious in listening to my explanation and reminded me of an episode of Friends where Phoebe is ticked at Ross because he called her boring in a dream where they are playing chess on a frozen lake. It turns out that it wasn't Ross at all but Cameron Diaz in disguise as Ross, but the damage was done.

Dreams are weird. I remember a lot of dreams, which leads me to believe I do not sleep well or, according to the Marvel Cinematic Universe (MCU), I am simply peeking into the lives of other versions of me from the multiverse. I prefer the latter explanation.

My wife claims to never dream, having no dream recollections at all (really). This leads me to believe she is a deep sleeper or is unique in the multiverse, according to MCU lore. I prefer the latter in this too.

MEDICAL CARE IN OUR REGION

Sometimes things don't change much, changes occur gradually. But there is lots of talking and very little action to back this up. Right now, for over 50 per cent of medical care, rural people from our area have to go to Winnipeg. They spend time and money to access over 50 per cent of medical care. Almost all of which is specialized care.

It is time the government spends a reasonable amount to promote regionalization. This year, the provincial government received $77 million from the federal government for ike many others, I grew up in a family that always said a prayer before we dug into a meal. This was referred to as, "saying grace."

DON'T MIND THE MESS

Saying grace

I'm not sure if this was just my clan, or if other Mennonite families did this, but we usually added an extra thank you prayer at the end of the feast. As a kid, I didn't really understand the need for the second grace. I surmised that perhaps it was letting God know now that we had actually tasted the food, we were sincerely grateful, and indicating to my mom, my aunts, or any other servers waiting on the sidelines that it was finally time to step in and clear the table.

Saying grace didn't always involve a banquet. Often, it was warranted by just a piece of pie and a coffee. Although the ice cream and other treats we snuck out of the freezer generally flew under Nostalgia aside, I do see the need for saying grace. It acknowledges the Source of this bounty set before us, and it also encourages gratitude; something that the maker of the meal often doesn't receive. Although many prayers would include, "And God bless the hands that prepared it."

Praying out loud was also something we never did around my parents' table, or at my grandparents' house. I'm not sure why, since many of my friends' families were quite verbal in their show of gratitude. Did my relatives consider it a private practice and disrespectful to add audio, or did it simply boil down to, "It's just the way we've always done it."

In my family, there were simple guidelines to saying grace. We'd clasp our hands, bow our heads, close our eyes, and think grateful thoughts, or silently mouth the words. The main thing was the Recipient above would accept whatever humble and sincere show of praise we had to offer. As my parents said. "God sees the heart and doesn't care if it's not fancy."

The timing of the silent prayer depended on the spirit of the group. As kids, we kept one eye half open to see if anyone had raised their head and was reaching for a fork. Then, we could follow. Usually, it was an elder who dictated the length, and we dared not be the first to end it.

And Heaven help me if I glanced over at a sibling or certain cousin whose head was bowed, but was wildly grinning at me, daring me not to laugh. Of course I laughed, which led to a whole lot of conversations later about disobedience and lack of respect.

Later, as my family circle grew, I got to know some folks who didn't think a simple thank you was enough, and always added a few opening remarks to the prayer. Many times, this often lengthy preamble included appeals for someone's provision or healing, or petitions for a few souls who had lost their way. It was informative, to say the least, and there were a few of us who squirmed from time to time.

At the end of the day, I'm glad that my parents carried on the tradition of saying grace. It's a simple acknowledgement that this tasty dish created by loving hands isn't something to be taken for granted. It didn't just materialize out of nowhere. Someone paved the way for it to appear on our table, and He deserves the credit. That humble prayer puts things into perspective.

Although, I'll never really understand the one about Johnny Apple-

"waiting list reduction." Does this government have a view on areas outside the perimeter when they spend $77 million? From what I see the government could do that if local leaders make correct representation based on statistics. If not, all that money is going to Winnipeg.

Our government has to do more to decentralize specialty care wherever that is possible. The question is whether our new government will listen to the rural people. My impression is yes, if our reps make submissions with reason, the new government will be receptive to it.

The main reason for decentralization is it will save money for the government. The expenses for the same services in a regional center are at least 20 per cent less than in a tertiary center. The other side of the coin is that rural people can access some specialist care here instead of going to Winnipeg. Then rural people will have to spend less money to access the same essential specialist care. Convenience for old people will be a secondary benefit. So, it will be a "win-win" for all the government and rural people.

Winkler Heritage Soc. puts call out for volunteers

By Ashleigh Viveiros

The Winkler Heritage Society's future depends very much on more people getting involved.

The volunteer-run organization held its annual meeting last week.

Longtime member Ed Falk reluctantly stepped into the role of acting chair. John Epp had been filling in in the wake of the death of board chair Randy Rietze last fall.

At the AGM, the board bid farewell to its former secretary treasurer and also welcomed a couple new faces, but no one was eager to take on the leadership mantle.

"Rather than fold the board up and say nothing can happen, I said Î'd do it," Falk says, stressing he's hoping it will be a temporary position. "Hopefully in the next several months there will be somebody that will be willing to take on a position that is more of a driver position."

Falk says it's been a struggle for the society to get new dues-paying members (they have about 60 active ones right now) and board members willing to help lead the organization into the future.

But fresh blood—of any age—is needed as the society looks for a new home for both the Winkler Heritage Museum (currently in the Southland Mall) and the Winkler Archives (currently in the Winkler Centennial Library) by year's end. They also need people eager to come up with some new fundraising ideas and to help launch them.

"We are all a product of history ... it's part of who we are," Falk says of the importance of the society's preservation and education efforts, which in addition to the museum and the archives also includes offering genealogical help to those on the hunt for their family's history, a regular historical newsletter for members, and the Stone and Stories project, which complies the biographies of every person buried in the Winkler cemeteries.

If you have an interest in history and a willingness to get involved, the society wants to hear from you.

"We want people to come see what we've got, what it is we do," Falk says. "We want them to participate in whatever way they can."

He urges people to drop by the Winkler Heritage Museum or contact them through their website (winklerheritagesociety.ca) to learn more.

> STANLEY BUDGET, FROM PG. 5

"Our contribution to the hospital through the Boundary Trails Health Centre Foundation is a million dollars there that's spread out over four years. That's an additional special levy ... so that's part of our six per cent increase in taxes," noted Reeve Ike Friesen. "But it's a good thing. We need it for the community. It's a growing region, and we see it continuing to grow.

"As well, we're putting some money into reserve for the wastewater project we're working on together with the City of Winkler, and that will be used up in the next few years."

The major projects coming into play with the budget meant it was to be expected it would all have some impact on taxes, but council felt that the increase was reasonable under the circumstances.

"I think we've done a fair job," said Froese. "And I think with the inflationary factors we've seen over the last couple of years, it was inevitable that we would increase the taxes to some degree."

"I think we've done a really good job of working with our numbers," suggested Friesen. "I think with the growth that is coming, we will see return coming in the future as well. It's costing us money now, but there's also the additional inflationary costs of years."

On the revenue side, there is a six per cent shift from the municipal tax levy to other revenue and a transfer from reserve funds for 2024.

Two thirds of the revenue or $7,298,106 comes from the municipal tax levy, while 31 per cent or $3,498,697 is through other revenue such as grants, and three per cent or $340,000 is through the transfer from reserve.

The municipality's outstanding debt from such things as debentures has decreased by $724,568 to $6,193,500 as of Jan. 1.

Here is a breakdown of the key areas of spending for the municipality:

- Transportation services: 51 per cent of the budget at $4,042,353 - a 10.5 per cent increase.
- General government services: 16.5 per cent of the budget at $1,305,770 a 7.5 per cent increase.
- Protective services (fire and police): 9.5 per cent of the budget at $752,181 - a four per cent increase.
- Recreation and culture services: 6.8 per cent of the budget at $537,638 - an increase of 13.7 per cent.
- Planning and engineering services: 6.2 per cent of the budget at $485,373 - an increase of 8 per cent.
- Health and welfare services: 5.5 per cent of the budget at $435,466 - an increase of 133 per cent due in that have increased in the last couple large part to contribution towards expansion of the Boundary Trails Health Centre.

- Environmental services: 2.5 per cent of the budget at $197,000 - an increase of 7.8 per cent.

2 per cent of the budget at $1555,050 - a decrease of 1.9 per cent.

Some of the key projects and priorities supported by the budget include the following:

- A joint effort with the City of Winkler to provide expanded wastewater treatment capacity which will allow for expanded residential and commercial development.
- A sewer project in the corridor between Winkler and Morden for the Boundary Trails Health Centre expansion and expanded commercial development.

- Low-pressure sewer infrastructure for the villages of Reinfeld and Schanzenfeld to provide improved sewer capacity and service for both communities.
- A new community pathway linking Winkler and Morden to provide a safer active transportation alternative for commuters travelling between the two cities.
- A new water reservoir to allow for expanded development in the area and provide consistent and secure access to potable water for Boundary Trails Health Centre.

• Additional water reservoirs in • Economic development services: Stanley to secure access to potable water in all areas of the municipality.

 Continued improvement to gravel and paved roads.

"We want to continue to maintain the services we provide, but we also have to look to the future," said Friesen, citing for example the need for asset management. "We're going to be replacing a lot of the infrastructure that we have, so we need to put away money for that as well.

"We always look at improving our roads, so we try to improve some roads every year that we have on a forward thinking plan over a few years, so we do upgrade some roads every year."

They also cited the community pathway in the Morden-Winkler corridor as a project they hope to see finally get underway.

"We're hoping maybe that is going to take off this year," said Froese. "We would like to see that moving

Humane soc. sees high level of surrenders, but lots of adoptions, too

By Lorne Stelmach

The past year saw a higher level of animal surrenders and intakes at the Pembina Valley Humane Society, but the organization also achieved a near-record number of animals re-

Combine that with the humane society being able to re-invest its surplus into the organization and finding improved operational efficiencies within the shelter, it means the volunteer board judges 2023 as a successful year.

"I think one of the biggest things that we focused on this last year was just sustainability," said chairperson Audrey Wiebe following the humane society's annual meeting March 5.

"How can we get the shelter to a point we can sustain long term, more than a year ... so we really worked extremely hard on our fundraising committee and our grants committee to try to generate a little more revenue," she said. "And I think because we were seeing such an influx of the surrenders coming in ... we were really just focused on a proactive plan on how we can generate more funds to help out more animals."

The shelter experienced one of the highest rates of surrender and intake in 2023 with a wait list sometimes reaching over nine months long.

It took in 149 animals, including 75 cats and 74 dogs. There were 169 adoptions, with 85 cats and 84 dogs finding new homes.

In 2023, 183 animals were placed in foster homes, compared to 132 in 2022, and 131 of those animals were adopted before the end of the year.

Wiebe suggested it's clear the positive momentum that has been generated is making a difference in addressing the need communities of southern Manitoba have for animal welfare.

"And I think because we're so involved in the community now ... just being involved more with the community, I would say they have turned around and just supported us so much," she said.

It helped contribute to what became a positive year financially for PVHS. There was a healthy surplus based on revenue of $298,871 and expenses of $237,986. Total revenue outperformed the budget by 25 per cent, and fundraising revenue exceeded the budget by 44 per cent.

"Fundraising probably brings in a majority of the revenue that we saw ... and this past year exceeded any previous year. We hit huge milestones and records," said Wiebe. "We were blown away by the support from our donors, sponsors and community grants. Not only were we able to work through our wait list to a manageable level, we were able to implement a proactive long-term plan."

Wiebe noted their 2023 operational focus was around the pillar of "sustain" with three major goals to improve animal care and adoptions, improve community education and support, and build financial sustain-

"The pillar that we're really focused on this year is really just inspiring with community programs that are in the works now."

In partnership with the Morden Veterinary Clinic, PVHS was able to expand the low cost spay and neuter program to not only include Morden and Winkler but also reach out as far as Pilot Mount, La Rivière, Cartwright, and surrounding areas. Implementing this program makes spaying and neutering more accessible to those who may have not been able to afford it otherwise.

And although a goal was to launch a TNR (trap, neuter and return) program in 2023, it was held up for a number of reasons, but Wiebe said they will continue to work with the local councils to come up with ways to improve the stray cat overpopula-

As well, the humane society launched a program that is teaching schoolchildren how to approach dogs safely.

"One of the biggest takeaways this year also is just highlighting the volunteers who give so much to the shelter," said Wiebe. "A lot of people are just really passionate about animals, and they want to be a voice and help

Donation breakdown

Where does your money go when you support the Pembina Valley Humane Society?

If you donate $10 to the organization, here is a breakdown of how your donation is put to use:

- $4.40 will be spent on re-homing animals, including food, medical care, and other direct costs of animal care
- $3.70 will be deployed to maintain the shelter, including stocking supplies, cleaning, and utilities.

- $1.30 will go towards putting on events to bring awareness to the cause and educating the public on responsible pet ownership.
- $0.60 will be used for administration, which includes all the expenses needed to keep the organization running.

Ten-year-old donates to BTHC Fdn. for new NICU

"IT'S AWESOME TO

SEE THAT SOMEONE

THAT AGE WOULD

EXPERIENCE."

BACK FROM HER

By Lorne Stelmach

Kaylee Henderson is quite likely the youngest benefactor when it comes to supporting the expansion of Boundary Trails Health Centre.

The 10-year-old presented a donation of $2,660 last Wednesday to the Boundary Trails Health Centre Foundation specifically for the development of a neo-natal intensive care unit (NICU).

Henderson and her family were inspired to collect donations in place of gifts for her 10th birthday party as a result of her own journey of having been born premature and spending her first few months of life at Children's Hospital in Winnipeg.

Due to pregnancy complications, Kaylee was delivered three months early, shared her mother Amy.

"She did have some health concerns and was quite tiny. She was two pounds, four ounces, and she did spend three months in NICU in Winnipeg," Amy said.

"We did spend our three months away from our family and our other two daughters that stayed with my parents while we were away," she added. "We stayed with family in Winnipeg so we could be closer to the hospital to see her every day."

Kaylee has since had no major health concerns other than a few bouts of pneumonia, but the experience has still had a lasting impact.

Whey Kaylee turned five, she had family and friends help her collect stuffies to donate to Katie Cares.

"Because she had been a recipient in some of her stays here at Boundary then she wanted to give back to them," said Amy, who noted Kaylee then had a similar thought for her 10th birthday on Jan. 25.

"Instead presents, she had said if they would like to donate to her cause for the foundation to earmark for the NICU equipment," said Amy. "Being her birthday, 10th our family all thought it was a great opportunity to be able to do a little fundraiser."

She is very proud of her daughter.

"It's awesome to see that someone that age would want to give back from her experience," Amy said. "And to be able to have that for families to be able to be close to their family and home also helps for them."

"I wanted to because I know it's hard," said Kaylee. "I know it's hard because ... if you're in the Children's Hospital, then you really miss your family.

"Because I was in this hospital, for my 10th birthday I wanted to help because they probably needed a lot of help to expand," she said. "When I heard that there was the NICU coming, I was like, 'Oh, I should help, and I can make it faster for them to build."

"She is going to be an amazing little philanthropist ... she sees the big picture," said foundation executive director Shannon Samatte-Folkett. "We are always grateful when the youth get involved and they see things that the community needs at such a young age.

"I am speechless listening to her because we are going to do some really great things," she added. "Learning about families who did have to stay in the city, and now when the level two NICU is complete, they won't have to do that. They can stay closer to home, and that what was the whole purpose of our foundation ... bringing services closer to home for our community."

'Roots Rediscovered' on now at Winkler Arts and Culture

By Ashleigh Viveiros

Winkler Arts and Culture is teaming up with the Winkler Heritage Society this month for a unique exhibition that shines the spotlight on local his-

From the Archive: Roots Rediscovered is on display at the Park St. gallery until the end of the month. It features a host of artifacts on loan from the Winkler Archives, providing a glimpse into the history of Winkler and the surrounding area.

"There are many photographs, including a few portraits from Gerhard (George) Sawatzky, a gifted photographer who started in our area in 1948," shares WAC executive director Jered Hildebrand. "We also have some fabric pieces: a maternity dress from 1924, a doll dressed in 1890s formal church attire, and more.

"There are some paintings, charcoal portraits, models, and historical documents on display as well."

The idea for the show came after discussions with heritage society reps, Hildebrand says.

"We want to support the Winkler Heritage Society, as we value them as an important part of our community," he says. "After connecting with Ed [Falk] from the society's archive, we found a unique opportunity to display a number of their items in our gallery. These items hold not only historical significance but also artistic and cultural value as well."

Falk says he's pleased to be able to take the pieces out of the archives' space at the Winkler library and into a new venue, potentially reaching a whole new group of people.

"We always want to try and reach out and inform people of what we are and what we do, because so many people have never been in the archives before," he says. "They don't always even know we're there.'

Each piece in the show has an interesting story behind it, Falk shares, pointing to a photo of an old barn that comes with a family story of wartime spycraft, and then to the maternity dress worn by a member of the Wiebe family who originally owned the land Winkler stands on today.

"We need to keep in mind where we came from," Falk stresses of the importance of historical preservation in a growing community like Winkler.

Falk says his time at the archives and the Winkler Heritage Museum comes with countless instances of people stopping by with artifacts, memories, or information that might otherwise be lost forever.

He recalls two woman visiting and realizing they were related to the photographer whose work was on display.

"I was able to show them the photographs that their father, their grandfather had taken, and I heard the story of the young lady, the granddaughter-she's a philharmonic violinist in Philadelphia ... just because I happened to be there that day and they walked in."

He recalls another person contacting the archives looking for childhood photos long lost. He was able to scan one for them from an old school yearbook he had on file.

"When you have those kinds of experiences, you see the importance of preserving stuff," Falk says.

Details about each piece on display will be available at the exhibit, but Falk will also be at the art gallery on Thursday, March 21 from 7-8:30 p.m. to share more detailed stories and field questions. All are welcome.

Work from Rimon Art Collective on display in Morden

By Lorne Stelmach

A group exhibit on now at the Pembina Hills Gallery in Morden showcases the shared cultural heritage of the artists through their creative work.

The Rimon Art Collective is a group of female Jewish artists based in Manitoba, and the Kabbalat Shalom exhibition is their first group show,

The five participating artists see the collection of work as embodying their spirit of creativity, resilience and community.

"We all work in different areas. We all have separate media backgrounds, but at the core of it, a lot of our themes go back to our Jewish identity," said Winnipeg artist Shan Pullan, who is part of the exhibit along with Liza Isakov, Mishelle Aminov, Yael Friefeld, Halley Ritter, and Etel Shevelev. "It's grown into very long-lasting friendships."

The collective is made up of alumni and current students of the School of Art at the University of Manitoba.

A group statement explains the name as embodying the rich symbolism and deep meaning they infuse into their art.

"Just as the pomegranate holds within it numerous seeds, each representing a facet of our identity and experience, so too do our artworks reflect the multitudes within us. Our collective art statement underscores our commitment to fostering a supportive family of artists and reclaiming spaces for Jewish expression in the face of adversity.

"As Jewish artists, we understand the importance of communication and the role of art as a universal language. In a world where misunderstanding and mistranslation often prevail, we strive to use our creativity to bridge divides and amplify our voic-

For Pullan, whose interest in photography growing up led her to university for art school, finding this level of connection has been vital.

"I have been using my art form as a way of connecting with my culture and connecting with the community as well," she said. "It actually started with out with three of us ... we just started as a group of friends. We were in a print making class, and we slowly started adding more Jewish women who we knew from the school.

"Originally, it was just a group chat for support, and then because we're all in the artist community, we had the idea of creating the collective to showcase female Jewish artists in Manitoba."

Pullan does analog photography and has delved into a technique called film souping, where a film roll is soaked in various liquids to change its chemical properties. It has been used by photographers and artists who want to add a unique touch to their

It is important to have that cultural connection.

"Culture is an incredibly important part to the Jewish community ... because we are a smaller community, especially here in southern Manitoba, having people of the same culture and having similar backgrounds is an incredible way of connecting," Pullan said. "In the school of art, which is where most of us met, it's an even smaller community."

She loves the varying styles and media on display as part of their first group exhibit.

"We all worked hard together to create the show and to create the collective," said Pullan. "It's really big ... for myself, this is the first time that my art has really been in a professional art space ... I think, for most of us, this is kind of the first step in our artistic careers ... this first opportunity is incredibly special for us."

Isakov said they see this exhibit as a major stepping stone for the group, with more opportunities coming their way.

"I'm really happy that I have something like this because I felt for the longest time since I immigrated here that I didn't really have a community and didn't have a lot of Jewish or Israeli friends," said Isakov. "Coming together like this ... when the thought arose that we should do something creative together and showcase our art together ... it really helped us to come together.

"We have a lot of mediums. Everyone is really unique with their "For me, they connect back to memories of the own styles, and everyone has a different point of view and a lot of different attributes and mediums that they contribute to the group," she concluded. "We work together really well. We're all kind of on the same wavelengths with what we are creating and what we would like to showcase."

Winkler Food Cupboard grappling with rising food costs, need

By Ashleigh Viveiros

Rising food costs and increased demand for their services saw the Winkler and District Food Cupboard's expenses rise dramatically in 2023.

At its annual meeting last week, the volunteer-run organization reported that it spent over $320,000 to operate last year, up nearly $82,000 from 2022. The bulk of its expenses, nearly $289,000, is food purchases, an increase of $77,000 from the year before.

And while donations also saw a marked rise—up nearly $112,000 from 2022 to $308,479—it wouldn't have been enough to avoid a deficit if not for the agency receiving a $25,000 grant from Food Security Manitoba, the last installment of funding committed the year before. That grant meant the food cupboard posted a surplus of $21,788 for 2023.

"It was a pleasant surprise that we had a small surplus this year—we really though we were going to run a deficit because food prices are going up," said board chair Milt Olfert.

The food bank relies on the support of the community to be able to feed families in need, he stressed,

But the project is only as good as the responses it receives from the community, Hildebrand said, urging people to participate when asked.

"We're measuring what matters. We're measuring the heartbeat of the community," he said. "So if we don't have people's buy-in and the actual information, we're not going to be able to make the changes that they want to see in this community."

More details about the public surveys will be available in the coming weeks.

"We were very pleasantly surprised with donations coming in from the different individuals and from organi- ty from the community to help provide donations to help zations that have raised money for us, like the Fehr Falk Foundation and the Thanks for Giving Run and the FCC food drive," Olfert said. shelves of the organization's space inside the Central Station Community Centre each week, shopping the sales as much as possible.

The agency also makes good use of its food rescue program, which works with several local grocery stores to keep still usable food products out of the landfills and get them into the hands of families and organizations that can make tral Station (555 Main St.) to learn more about accessing use of them.

Olfert says there are three pillars that make the food cupboard possible.

"Number one is volunteers. If you don't have the volunteers here to run the programs and give out the food, source the food and all those things, who's going to do it?

"Number two is Central Station. The partnership that we and the Winkler area has certainly stepped up to help them have with Central Station and the work that they do with support, we couldn't do what we do.

"And, of course, the rest of the community, the generosisupply the food."

The strength of the food cupboard means it's been able overflow items to food banks in Carman, Altona, and fur-

Paying it forward like this has dividends in turn for the Winkler Food Cupboard, Olfert reflected, sharing how a Olfert and fellow board member Christina Wall stock the volunteer they connected with in Carman has a spouse who works for a flour company.

"So all of a sudden we get a call saying, hey, we would like to donate a pallet of flour to you. So that giving, us being generous to other communities and other organizations, comes back and helps us."

If you need help putting food on the table, stop by Centhe Winkler and District Food Cupboard.

Cutting the ribbon on Chat Masala, Winkler's new Indian eatery

By Ashleigh Viveiros

Winkler's newest culinary experience celebrated its grand opening last weekend.

Chat Masala cut the ribbon on its space at 725 Main St. (inside the Shop & Stop grocery store) Saturday morning.

Business partners Kunal Patel and Sachin Jain share that they saw a market for authentic Indian cuisine in the area.

"When we came here there was no such food around here, so we decided to go in for something that was not available. We grabbed the opportunity," Jain said.

The restaurant's name comes from a powered spice mix often used for flavouring in India.

"It is the most common seasoning in Indian cooking," explained Patel. "It is one flavour that goes in your mouth very easily. Everyone likes the flavour."

The restaurant opened about three months ago and they've been very pleased at the response thus far as they steadily grow their customer base.

"The best part is, whosoever has come, they are coming back again and again," Patel said.

Chat Masala offers a varied and affordable menu of Indian dishes.

"We invite people to come here and try different items," Patel said, noting they offer different options so you can mix and match and see what dishes you like best. "And any time during the day you can grab a full meal for only $6.95 ... and there is another meal with bigger variety and more variations for $11.95."

They've seen especially brisk business over the lunch hour in recent weeks, Jain noted.

"Here you can get daily hot food," he said. "Even if you're coming seven days a week you can get seven different items. You are not eating the same sandwich again and again."

You can check out their menu online at chat-masala.square.site or follow them on social media (ChatMasala Winkler).

W.E.S. principal moves into asst. superintendent role

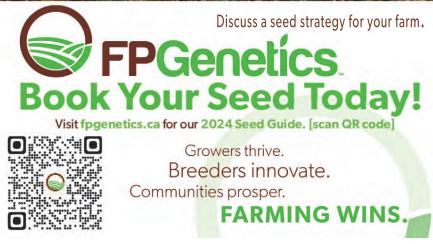

By Voice staff

Winkler Elementary School principal Cindy Hamilton moves into a new role with Garden Valley School Division this summer.

The school board announced last week that Hamilton has been appointed as GVSD's new assistant superintendent of student services, effective July 15.

Hamilton has worked in the division for 25 years, holding a variety of roles including as a classroom teacher, guidance teacher, resource teacher, vice-principal, and principal.

"Ms. Hamilton believes relationships are imperative to student success," the division shared in a statement announcing the hire. "Feeling accepted and supported is crucial for students and their readiness to learn."

MAF's Power of the Purse set for April 6

By Lorne Stelmach

An annual initiative with the aim to engage women of all generations in community philanthropy returns next month.

The Morden Area Foundation's Power of the Purse fundraising brunch set for Saturday, April 6 helps builds visibility for Morden's charitable sector while bringing local women together to learn about the needs of the community and to support a range of programs and projects through donor-directed grants.

It started nine years ago as the Women's Giving Circle with the aim to support programs for women and children and a goal to raise and grant $10,000 from 100 participating women, each of whom contribute $100.

"The goal of raising funds to grant to local organizations has certainly been successful over the years, and the event has become a much anticipated social gathering as well," said foundation chairperson Sue Nelson. "Don't forget to come dressed in your best black, white and pink!"

The brunch also assists with building the Power of the Purse Endowment Fund, which is being built to generate enough income to continue to make annual grants to local charities already at work in the community and to encourage the birth and growth of new initiatives that especially target the needs of women and children.

Last year, 110 women participated in Power of the Purse, granting $11,000 to three presenting organizations. The Menzies Medical Centre community board received $5,073 for a handheld portable ultra sound unit; the Pembina Valley Pregnancy Care Centre got $3,573 for its car seats, cribs and formula initiative; and the Pembina Valley Humane Society was awarded $2,354 for its Be-a-Tree educational program for students.

This year's brunch takes place from

The ninth annual Power of the Purse brunch takes place at the Morden Activity Centre on Saturday, April 6. Funds will be raised for three local non-profits.

9 to 11:30 a.m. at the Morden Activity Centre. Participants will enjoy food catered by Janet Nedohin and they will listen to three charities make a presentation on their specific project before deciding how they want to gift their $100.

The participating charities will be announced at the event, but each has been approved by the Power of the Purse committee and foundation board and is a local registered charity.

The $100 ticket will come with an $80 tax receipt, and the deadline to register is Thursday, March 28. Cheques may be mailed or dropped off at the office, or you can pay by e-transfer. Make cheques out to the Morden Area Foundation, 13 – 379 Stephen Street, Morden, MB R6M 0G8.

For further information, contact the Morden Area Foundation office at 431-349-1138 or e-mail at info@mordenfoundation.ca

If you are unable to attend but still wish to participate, advise the foundation when you register and an email will be sent to you the afternoon of the event advising you of this year's charities so you can vote remotely.

MANITOBA CANADA'S HEART IS CALLING

Farmers and ranchers are encouraged to plan for #FarmSafetyEveryday

By Lana Meier

Canadian Agricultural Safety Week (CASW) takes place March 10-16, and this year, farmers, farm families, farm workers, and farming communities are encouraged to consider how they plan for #FarmSafetyEveryday.

CASW, a yearly event organized by CASA, aims to promote the significance of safe agriculture throughout Canada. The concluding phase of their three-year safety campaign, titled "Your Farm, Your Family, Your Success: Safety is Our Heritage," continues to emphasize the importance of safety in agriculture.

This year, the focus of organizers is on offering practical safety tips and promoting discussions about farm safety. The goal is to highlight the significant role that safety plays in ensuring the prosperity and lasting impact of farming businesses.

"There is no question that farm accidents can have a devastating toll with physical, psychological, and financial consequences," says Andrea Lear, CASA's Chief Executive Officer. "But we also know that many on-farm incidents are preventable. That's why we want to provide Canadian producers with the tools and resources they need to protect the health and safety of everyone who lives and works on or visits farms and ranches. Canadian Agricultural Safety Week serves as a reminder that farm safety is important year-round and that by working together, we can ensure a safer agricultural sector."

Annually, CASA promotes safety on Canadian farms through CASW. This year, CN, Syngenta Canada, Canadian Canola Growers Association, Fertilizer Canada, and Parrish & Heimbecker are sponsoring the event.

More resources and information related to CASW can be found at agsafetyweek.ca. The media kit on the website includes a variety of materials such as feature stories, safety advice articles, public service announcements, and graphics.

The CASA is a non-profit organization that works towards enhancing the well-being of farmers, their families and workers in the agricultural sector. It receives partial funding from the Canadian government through the Sustainable Canadian Agricultural Partnership, a joint effort between federal, provincial and territorial authorities. For more information, visit www.casa-acsa.ca, find us on Facebook or LinkedIn, or follow us on X @ planfarmsafety.

Pharmacy Appreciation Month

For your health, consult your pharmacy professional

Pharmacy Appreciation Month is celebrated every year in March throughout Canada. The Canadian Pharmacists Association organizes this initiative to recognize the work of pharmacy professionals and express gratitude for their contribution to the healthcare system. The event also serves as an opportunity to raise public awareness about the vital role these professionals play in promoting good health.

Never hesitate to ask for advice

As you know, pharmacists provide a wide range of services. They can help you renew your drug prescriptions, prescribe certain medications, monitor and adjust your treatment and administer vaccines. Pharmacists can also offer guidance when purchasing over-the-counter medicines and natural health products.

Although many natural health products are available without a prescription, they could interact with the medications you're taking or each other. That's why it's essential to get professional advice before buying them.

It's also a good idea to always go to the same pharmacy. This ensures that the pharmacy team can access your complete medical history and provide appropriate advice. You'll establish a rapport with them and feel more at ease when discussing your individual requirements.

Remember that you should always consult with your doctor before stopping any medication. Even if you feel better or are experiencing unpleasant side effects, abruptly stopping treatment can be risky. Your pharmacist is dedicated to keeping you healthy.

Someone asked me recently WHY?

Why build; why be independent; and why bother with a Doctorate in Pharmacy? This is why: my passion for helping does not 'fit' into a chain or a big box store. My method of helping people is grassroots and motivated by changing lives. I know I can improve your wellbeing, whether it is while I provide medications or during an appointment. My expertise in pharmacy and my 30 years of experience give me the tools and courage to be an entrepreneur in Morden. Along with my Doctorate, I am also certified in Travel Health and Sexual Health; I can prescribe many medications; and I easily consult with other healthcare providers to bridge this gap in healthcare. It is a very tough time in healthcare, and I am committed to helping make it easier for you.

Flyers start final week of regular season with a win

By Ashleigh Viveiros

The Winkler Flyers downed Steinbach and Neepawa but stumbled against Portage this past week in MJHL action.

Last Wednesday's game against the Pistons in Winkler saw the Flyers up 3-0 with goals from Lucas Ens, Trent Penner, and Dalton Andrew. The visitors managed one goal in response midway through the third, giving the game to Winkler 3-1.

The Flyers had an edge on shots on goal, 30-21, with Malachi Klassen making 20 saves.

Hosting the Portage Terriers Friday night didn't go quite so well. The close game saw Portage draw first blood 14 minutes in only to have Andrew tie it up for Winkler three minutes later. That was it for scoring until the first half of the third, where Portage managed to get what proved to be game-winner to take it 2-1.

Klassen made 28 saves off 30 shots in net. His teammates fired 33 the other way.

The pendulum swung back Winkler's way against the Neepawa Titans Sunday afternoon.

The 5-3 win saw Jakob Jones score twice and Zach Nicolas, Noah Deimer, and Avery Anderson contribute singles. Klassen made 19 saves as Winkler outshot Neepawa 37-22.

Winkler is in the East Division's second place spot with a 40-9-2-3 record and 85 points. They trail the first-place Steinbach Pistons by eight points and are ahead of the Portage Terriers in third by nine.

The Flyers' final four regular-season games have them in Winnipeg to play the Freeze Tuesday night, hosting the Virden Oil Capitals Wednesday, and then on the road in Selkirk to play the Steelers Friday and in Winnipeg to play the Blues Sunday.

PENNER HONOURED WITH RBC, MVP AWARDS

At the start of Friday's game, forward Trent Penner was named a Community Ambassador by the MJHL and RBC.

Winkler's Brady Craik finds himself in tight with Portage netminder Gavin Renwick but can't get the puck out of the pile of snow beside the net in Friday's game, which the Terriers won 2-1. Right: RBC rep Simon Becker and Winkler Mayor Henry Siemens presented Trent Penner with a Community Ambassador award just before the game.

"RBC sponsors game nights across the MJHL where we honour a player who has stood out for their commitment to community," explains Simon Becker, assistant branch manager at the Winkler RBC.

Community Ambassadors are selected for having demonstrated outstanding citizenship and sportsmanship both on and off the ice.

"Penner is a hometown player and he never hesitates to give back to the community," Becker says. "He devotes much of his time to local youth during the season as well as in the off season. And on top of that he's also dedicated time to Salem Home in Winkler.

"We're really excited to honour Trent for his community involvement."

Flyers head coach and general manager Justin Falk says Penner was a clear pick for the award, which RBC presents to one player on every MJHL team each year.

Red River Valley Youth Soccer hoping to get local teams going

By Sean Conway

Sheldon Dueck is a parent in the community of Rosenort. He wanted a local soccer team for his son to play soccer on, so he's making it happen.

The organizers of Red River Valley Youth Soccer held a meeting at the Rosenort Community Centre on March 4 for all parents interested in creating a soccer team in the community.

"I grew up in Rosenort. I have no interest in soccer but my son is gung ho about the sport," said Dueck. "Last year he played in Winkler. He wanted to play with his friends in town, so I'm trying to start up some soccer teams."

Dueck is not new to organizing sports: he's actively involved in minor hockey in Rosenort.

Last week's meeting didn't see a huge turnout, but Dueck is still optimistic.

"There were a few new faces, which I liked to see," he said, noting the team is open to kids from throughout the area. "Kids from St. Jean, Morris and Lowe Farm are welcome. Maybe if the interest is there other communities could form their own teams."

The plan is to join the Pembina Valley Soccer League, which has youth from Carman, Morden, Winkler, and Altona playing recreational soccer.

A team can have a maximum of twelve players and a goalie. The game is six versus six, with smaller nets and a reduced field size. All the equipment kids need to play are shin guards and cleats. There are no tryouts—every registered child makes the team.

The Rosenort information session focused on creating co-ed U10, U12, and U14 teams.

"We hope to expand to a U17 team in the future,"

The Pembina Valley Soccer League soccer season runs from May to June. Players are on the soccer field twice a week for one practice and one game, weather permitting.

The league distributes the games among all communities, so there would be some games played in Rosenort. Cost for registration is $100.

The startup team is looking for volunteers to get it off the ground.

"We are hoping to get kids and young adults involved to referee and coach," Dueck said. "The league will need coaches. We will know how many after we get a look at the number of kids.

"My kids play hockey in the winter. I wanted to build another sport option to keep kids active," he said, noting that "soccer is a cheap sport. We can build a program for kids to get involved in."

You can head to rrvyouthsoccer.ca to register your child or connect with Dueck via email to dueck21@ gmail.com or by calling 204-232-8730.

8 reasons to buy recyclable products

Recycling is a big part of your lifestyle, but what about buying products made from recycled materials? Here are eight great reasons to shop for recycled items.

- 1. You help maintain demand for recycled goods, which encourages businesses to buy from companies that offer them.
- 2. You encourage the development of new products by showing interest in materials that would otherwise be discarded.
- 3. You help conserve natural resources. Manufacturing products made from recycled materials uses minimal resources.

- 4. You limit the production of greenhouse gases by avoiding the disposal of materials.
- You support energy conservation, as less water and electricity are used to manufacture recycled goods.
- 6. You encourage the creation of new jobs for each stage of the production chain, including collection, sorting, processing and manufacturing.
- You respect the principles of sustainable development, which benefits your entire community.

Shop smarter by choosing recycled products made by companies that use sustainable practices.

To help celebrate Earth Day, here are a few Recycling Do's and Don'ts:

Do Recycle:

- Any plastic container with a recycling triangle on the bottom (except with the #6 includes bottles, pails, tubs and jugs) and any steel food and beverage containers: soup and pet food cans
- Drink cans & bottles, juice boxes
- All paper products including cardboard boxes, newspapers

Don't Recycle:

- Products containing multiple material types packaged together, like most coffee pods or toys containing both plastic and metal
- Takeout containers or pizza boxes with food remnants
- Household hazardous waste containers

Recycle Facts: Did you know?

- When you recycle just one aluminum can, you save enough energy to power a 100-watt light bulb for 20 hours or to listen to a full album on your iPod!
- When you use recycled paper instead of "virgin" paper, you are contributing to saving 7,000 gallons of water per ton of paper produced. Save water not just trees..

Reminder ** Reduce Recycling Contamination ** Cleaner Recycling means less waste and increased waste diversion.

AT YOUR DISPOSAL. Trash. Recycle. Compost.

Hawks move on to semi-finals versus Brandon Wheat Kings

By Lorne Stelmach

The Pembina Valley Hawks have taken down the number two team and now get a chance to take on the top seed as they advance in the Manitoba male U18 playoffs.

A 2-1 overtime victory in game five Saturday in Souris gave the Hawks a 3-2 series victory over the Southwest Cougars. They now advance to face the Brandon Wheat Kings in the semi-finals.

The seventh-place Hawks trailed 1-0 and 2-1 in the series after being edged 2-1 by Southwest in game three last Tuesday in Souris, but they then forced the fifth and deciding game with a 4-3 win in game four Thursday in Morden.

Acoyen Fehr was the hero 7:43 into overtime with his fourth goal of the playoffs. The Hawks had spotted the Cougars the opening goal in the first period, but Adrien McIntosh tied it up with 41 seconds left in the opening frame, and then Fehr got the game-winner.

Bryson Yaschyshyn made 30 saves as the Cougars held a 31-29 edge in shots on goal.

The Hawks outshot the Cougars 26-19 in game three, but they were mostly stymied by Southwest goaltender Micky Gross. Yaschyshyn made 17 saves for Pembina Valley.

Charlie Hill scored the lone Hawks goal to even the game at 1-1 seven minutes into the second period, but the Cougars scored what proved to be the winning goal with 35 seconds remaining in that frame.

Fehr had a pair of goals and a threepoint night to lead the Hawks to victory in game four. Yaschyshyn had a solid 38-save performance as the Cougars won the shots battle 41-32.

Lane Apperley and Liam Goertzen also scored for Pembina Valley, which trailed 2-1 after two but then came back with three goals in the third, including the winner by Fehr with 6:38 remaining in the game.

The semi-final round kicked off Tuesday in Brandon and then continued Wednesday in Morden. Results were not available at press time.

Game three is in Brandon Friday night and game four is back in Morden Sunday.

The Wheat Kings had a near perfect season with only one overtime loss in 44 games.

The Hawks kept most of their games with the Wheat Kings close, other than an 8-3 loss in December.

The other semi-final series has the third-place Winnipeg Wild taking on the fourth-place Winnipeg Thrashers.

Twisters open playoffs with pair of wins

By Ty Dilello

The Pembina Valley Twisters have taken a commanding 2-0 series lead winning the first two games of their quarterfinal match against the Raiders Jr. Hockey Club in the MMJHL playoffs.

Prior to the start of the playoffs, the Twisters suffered a 9-3 defeat on their home ice against the Fort Garry/Fort Rouge Twins in their last game of the regular season. Cohen Thomas had a pair of goals for Pembina Valley in the losing effort, while Lucas Jolicoeur had the other goal. Jack Martin stopped 36 shots in goal for the loss. The Twisters took the second spot in the MMJHL standings, boasting an impressive 27-14-4 record. As a result, they will have home-ice advantage as they face off against the seventh-seeded Raiders Jr. Hockey Club in their quarterfinal best-of-seven series.

Twisters' forward Derek Wiebe finished the regular season in seventh in the MMJHL's scoring race with 67 points in 44 games, while Merek Degraeve tied him with 67 points in 45 games. Netminder Logan Enns amassed a 20-8-1 record in goal, which was good for second in the league in wins, with a 2.93 goals-against average and .914 save percentage.

On March 8, the Twisters won Game 1 at home by a 1-0 scoreline in a tight defensively played affair from both teams. Wiebe had the game-winner for Pembina Valley, while Enns stopped all 33 shots he faced for the shutout.

Game 2 was played on March 10. It was a wild back and forth thriller that saw the Twisters rally from a twogoal deficit in the third period to force overtime. The game ultimately went to double overtime before the Twisters pulled out a massive 6-5 victory.

Mike Heppner led the way for Pembina Valley with a pair of goals including the overtime winner, while the team's other goals were scored by Colton Wiebe, Thomas, Zander Carela and Brock Wood. Enns stopped 22 shots in goal for the victory.

"I think we went through every emotion you can in the playoffs in that one," said Twisters' head coach Braeden Beernaerts. "The whole game, we felt like we still had a gear or two left in the tank, and we just had to find it. When we were able to not only tie the game but lead by one, I think we got too much of a relieved feeling, and we got caught thinking the game was over. And the Raiders capitalized on us as we were caught sleeping at the wheel. However, the boys dug deep and brought their all in the overtime as everyone stood tall, and Heppner was able to make an in-

Pembina Pizazz compete at Canada Cup

By Lorne Stelmach

It was less about the results than the experience when the local synchronized skating team took part in a national competition last month.

The Pembina Pizazz novice level team participated at the Canada Cup synchronized skating championship Feb. 21-25, and coach Pam Parker was proud of how well the skaters did in going up against more experienced teams from other provinces.

"They have a lot of room to grow," she said. "They learned way more than just about skating. They learned from the experience just in terms of things like how to compose themselves, how to work under pressure.

"You could see the improvement in their confidence and in their skills," Parker added. "They knew that they were kind of in their own level of competition, but they fit in with the teams at the end of the pack. They rose to the occasion."

Parker explained the format has changed for synchronized skating to have the senior and junior levels separate from the novice.

Entries were allocated to provinces or regions, with Manitoba and Saskatchewan getting one entry in the competition categories that included novice, intermediate, and open.

The Pembina Pizzazz qualified through the regional synchronized skating championship held in Morden earlier this year. Parker said Manitoba had not had a team qualify for the event in years.

"We knew going in that the level we would be skating at was different than the teams from Ontario and Quebec ... those are the powerhouses of synchronized skating," she said, noting skaters there practice year-round five days a week and may be dedicated to synchronized skating, while the local skaters also compete individually and practice one day a week.

Parker noted they also brought in a couple skaters from Portage with no synchronized skating experience.

"They did extremely well, considering how quickly we put it together," she said. "A lot of the kids have never competed outside of Manitoba, let alone at a national championship, so the whole thing was pretty huge and pretty exciting for them.

"The amount of energy and the noise in the building when they were at rink side waiting to skate was a whole new experience for them, and they handled it very well.

"It was a lot of pressure with a lot of people watching," said Parker. "They rose to the occasion and got their personal best score, and they were happy.

They met a lot of people, and they got to witness firsthand things that we don't get to see here in Manitoba just with the level of competition."

Parker sees opportunities like this perhaps even being a further boost to the local program, which overall is now at about 40 skaters at three levels, including adult.

"This is the biggest number we've had in a number of years."

Bombers/Mercs series going to game five

By Ashleigh Viveiros

The Morden Bombers' semi-final series against the Warren Mercs is going the distance.

The best-of-five series was tied at 2-2 heading into the work week, with the decisive game five set for Tuesday night in Warren. Results were not available at press time.

The Bombers were hoping to finish it on the road Friday night, heading into game three with a 2-0 series lead, but it wasn't to be. Warren won it 4-3.

Scoring for Morden was Keane Boucher in the first period and Mike Rey and Andrew Perrault in the third in an unsuccessful bid to close the gap. Reed Peters made 40 saves in net as the Mercs outshot the Bombers 44-

"He's been a quality leader for the organization, a player that's given a lot to this club for the last three seasons," Falk says, pointing to his work ethic and passion for both the game and the community. "He's been someone that's given back in so many different ways ... he's someone that's been a positive image of the organization for many years."

The RBC honour is not the only award that came Penner's way last week. He was also named the MJHL's most valuable player for 2023-2024, receiving the Steve "Boomer" Hawrysh MVP award for the season.

Penner said he's humbled by the

"It's not something I'd really thought about too much throughout the year, so it felt pretty good to win that one," he said of the MVP nod. "It kind of caught me a bit by surprise, but in a good way."

The Community Ambassador award is also a great honour, Penner said.

"That one is pretty important. Me being from Winkler, I take a lot of pride in the community of Winkler and the support that they give our team and me personally throughout my career here, so that one was very much appreciated."

Penner said working with local minor hockey youth is a highlight of being part of the Flyers organization.

"That's always a fun one, seeing those kids so excited for us to come out," he said, adding it's equally exciting for the junior players to see the kids succeed.

The award came with a $1,000 donation from RBC to the school of the winner's choice. Penner selected his alma mater, J.R. Walkof School in Winkler, as the recipient.

The Twisters will now head out onto the road for Games 3 and 4 at the Seven Oaks Sportsplex. Game 3 will be on March 12 at 7 p.m., while Game 4 will be held on March 15 at 7:30 p.m.

"It was a good lesson with a fortunate outcome that we were able to win in double overtime. We can't let off ever, and we can't take any game or shift for granted, or it could end up in the back of our net," said Beernaerts. We look forward to Game 3, and we hope we can keep the foot on the gas for a full sixty minutes."

Roland Curling Club celebrating 125 years

By Ty Dilello

The year 1898 marked the beginning of curling in Roland.

Nov. 11, 1898, was the date of the first meeting of the Roland Curling Club, with D.W. Jones elected as the chair. Land for the construction of the new venture was provided rent-free by Roland MacDonald for a term of five years.

These names, along with many others, assisted in establishing the Roland Curling Club. They were also instrumental in helping bring up the community of Roland with future businesses, organizations, and recreational services.

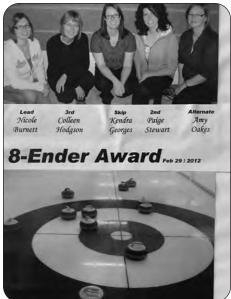

Over the next 125 years, many changes occurred to the Club and its facilities. Women first started curling in Roland for the 1900 season. Curling at that time meant owning or renting your rocks. It took until 1989 for an artificial ice plant to be installed in the current two sheets the community uses today.

From the original location in 1898, a new property and rink were developed in 1908. The second rink, located just east of the present rink, was destroyed by a fire in 1938. The current facility, home to the skating rink and curling ice was built and in use by 1939. It was initially thought that all minutes and records from the Club were lost in the fire, but since then, several historical items have been discovered.

The Roland Curling Club's first and only Provincial Championship team was the mixed team of Jim and Marion Hodgson and John and Arlene Bartley as they claimed the O'Keefe's National Mixed Curling Championship in the Spring of 1968.

Over the years, both curling families added many family members and wins to the curling Club. Another Roland resident and granddaughter to Jim and Marion, Karen Hodgson, competed at the 2004 Kärcher Canadian Junior Curling Championship in Victoria, B.C. Proud grandparents travelled to Victoria, BC, to see Hodgson throw second rocks for Team Manitoba's Tasha Hunter, who went 5-7 at the event.

From the changes of corn brooms to synthetic brushes and the introduction of artificial ice and the stick, the Roland Curling Club remains active in the community. Visitors to the Roland Pumpkin Fair can find volunteers from the Club serving breakfast pancakes each October before the new curling season starts. Three leagues operate for the 2023-24 season, including Stick Doubles on Mondays, Men's League on Tuesdays, and Ladies League on Wednesday evenings.

Annual bonspiels keep the Roland Curling Club active for interested members and visiting rinks. To celebrate its 100th Anniversary in 1998, the Club re-incarnated using the skating rink surface to make seven sheets of ice available for the Roland Centennial Mixed Bonspiel. Many current and former members returned to Roland for the event, as 56 teams competed. Like other clubs that have declining curling membership, the Club hopes to attract 16 teams for current organized bonspiels.

Roland Curling Club has actively participated in Curl Manitoba events, including the O'Grady and Manitoba Open. Team Michael Zacharias represented the Roland Curling Club well at the recent 2024 Manitoba Open and won the Manitoba Hydro Event. Over the years, other Roland-affiliated teams have won events in the former MCA Bonspiel.

To celebrate 125 Years of Roland, the Roland Curling Club has planned a couple of events. Mar. 22-23 will be the Wind-Up 125 Open Bonspiel. The two sheets will be busy as teams will compete in a 4-end game round-robin format. The entry fee is $100, and interested teams can contact Derek Baschuk at agtech@mymts.net or visit the Club.

April 6 will be when the Club officially celebrates its 125th at the Annual Banquet and Awards night, taking place at the Roland Memorial Hall. Everyone is invited as the Club will be inducting a new class of Honourary Life Members. Club trophies will also be presented for the celebration. Tickets are $25 at the 125 Open Bonspiel or by contacting the members of the 125-celebration committee.

"As a small curling club in a small community, the Roland Curling Club is always seeking new members and new sponsors," said Derek Baschuk of the Roland Curling Club. "The Club invites interested curlers to be in contact with the Club to enter teams or individuals in any of its leagues. Sponsor signage is available to assist in the upkeep and continued operation of the Roland Curling Club. To the future of curling."

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put vour sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

OBITUARY

Esther Janzen 1945 – 2024

After living life to the fullest, Louise Esther Merle Janzen met her Creator on February 24, 2024.

Esther was born in Morris, Manitoba May 21, 1945. When her mother died 3 weeks later she went to live with an uncle and aunt for 1 1/2 years. It was at that time her father married Judith Giesbrecht. Being the daughter of a rural school teacher, the family made many moves to different villages in Southern Manitoba. At age 17 Esther began her career teaching Grade 2.

Esther's gifts were many. She played a pivotal role in church, leading worship, playing piano, and preaching. She had a deep love for her God and her faith. She enjoyed writing poetry, storytelling, reading, journaling, playing the piano and harpsichord. She faithfully played and sang for the residents at Tabor Home, Salem Home, Legion House, and for many shut-ins. Esther took a pragmatic approach to life but also saw merit in the little things like catching up with former students on the sidewalk, sending all her nephews and nieces birthday cards with a long handwritten message and $10 bill, and keeping every teacher gift that she had ever received.

Esther was also a collector of all forms of jewelry, especially rings, coins, stamps, royal family books, Sears catalogues, Ty beanie babies, purses, shoes, berets, and so many VHS movies. Esther's students, colleagues and friends knew her to be genuine, trustworthy, tolerant and stubborn. Her students whom she referred to affectionately as her munchkins have fond memories of her kindness, inclusiveness and confidence.

Visits from her great-nephew Josh brought her much joy, although there were usually some electronic things to be "fixed". Long phone visits with her nephew Blaine were also treasured.

After 36 years of teaching she settled enthusiastically into retirement. She took to the highways and visited many places, her favorites being Manitou Springs in Watrous, SK and Disneyland in California.

In May 2023 she was diagnosed with appendix cancer. She faced this bravely and although she prayed fiercely for healing, God chose to give her a heavenly healing. We will miss her positivity and zest for life.

Esther was predeceased by parents Jacob and Marie Janzen (nee Nikkel); sister Eileen Pauls; brothers Jacob, Henry, Frank, and William; half brother Richard Janzen and step mom Judith.

She is survived by sister Marie, sisters-in-law Doris Janzen and Tineke VanDoorn, nieces and nephews, and many great and great-great nieces and nephews.

Esther was grateful and spoke highly of all her medical visits and providers. She would say with a twinkle in her eye, "the doctors are so handsome...it's one way to get my man-fix"! On one occasion the doctor replied, "you'd better book an eye exam"! And so too, her family would like to thank Dr. Leanne Nause, Cancer Navigation and CancerCare Manitoba for taking the lead roles in her care with compassion and respect.

A graveside service at Southside cemetery will be held to honor and celebrate Esther's life Sunday, May 19, 2024 at 4 p.m.

get inspired

(Family Features) What better way to celebrate friendship and camaraderie than with comforting foods all can enjoy. Sourdoughs and friendship breads may go in and out of fashion, but you can make them a staple of your inner circle with recipes that are easier than they appear.

Consider this Sourdough Starter, a 7-day process that may seem lengthy at first glance but requires just a few minutes in the kitchen each day. Without breaking the bank, this made-fromscratch solution includes just two ingredients - unbleached flower and warm water – so you can whip up favorites like Plain Sourdough, Everything Loaf, Cinnamon Brown Sugar Loaf and Chocolate Loaf.

Some are tempted to give up on a weeklong recipe, but if you can keep a houseplant alive, you can finish this simple starter and reap its delicious rewards.

In medium bowl, combine 330 grams warm water, 90 grams sourdough starter and 10 grams salt. Stir well then add 525 grams flour. Using silicone spoon, mix dough to sticky ball. Let rest, covered, about 45 minutes.

Pull dough from bottom and stretch to top of dough ball. Repeat around entirety of dough ball a few times then cover. Repeat process four times then cover and let sit at room temperature at least 6 hours but no more than 14 hours. Dough should double.

Sprinkle flour on counter then spread dough flat on floured surface. Fold dough from sides then turn and roll into ball. Place on parchment paper and put back in bowl 1 hour.

Heat oven to 500 F with uncovered Dutch oven inside.

Using sharp knife, score dough then place parchment paper and dough in Dutch oven. Cover with lid and bake 20 minutes then remove lid and lower temperature to 475 F for 25 minutes. Internal temperature should reach 195-205 F. Let rest at least 1 hour before cutting and serving.

Simply eat more fibre for weight loss

By Julie Germaine Coram

Starting today, You can lose weight with this one easy tip: boost your fibre intake.

It may be hard to believe, but research shows that fibre aids weight loss in multiple ways. For example, it takes longer for your body to digest a gram of fibre compared to a gram of fat, so you have more time to absorb this nutrient. Simply stated, this means you feel full for longer and are more likely to burn away these calories than store them as body fat.

For anyone trying to shed extra pounds, the benefits of fibre related to a healthy GI tract (or gut health) is key. Soluble fibre in particular (found in oats, apples, peas and carrots) kickstarts a process that helps your body manage blood sugar levels, reduces risk of fat storage, and ultimately boosts your metabolism to shrink existing fat cells. Another bonus is that you could experience lowered inflammation and healthier cholesterol levels.

I am a fat loss coach who knows that many people cannot seem to rid themselves of visceral belly fat. I suggest you try increasing your overall fibre intake on a daily basis of only 8-10 grams to finally see results and drop inches from your waistline.

Here are examples of foods that contain 8-10 grams of fibre:

- 1 cup of avocado
- 2 cups of broccoli
  - 2 cups of berries
- 2 apples
- 2 oz almonds
- ½ cup hummus
  - 1½ cups quinoa

Julie Germaine Coram

½ cup oats

Controlling your appetite and blood sugar fluctuations by improving your fibre intake will help you stick to your 'diet' and, make better food choices - and avoid insatiable cravings. You will also reduce your risk of developing heart disease, Type 2 diabetes, and more!
